

Abstract of the Disclosure

A packet processing unit and a session managing unit, which are conventionally arranged in a server, are arranged in a network connecting device, and the network connecting device performs a packet relay process based on session management. As a result, the load on a server is reduced, and a process by the server is performed faster.

5

10

2005091-012302